Data from Creative New York

Charts and tables from our 2015 Creative New York study. The report found that the creative sector is one of New York City’s most important economic assets but that the city’s working artists, nonprofit arts groups and for-profit creative firms face a growing number of challenges.
Creative New York: Written by Adam Forman and edited by David Giles, Jonathan Bowles and Gail Robinson. Additional research support from Xiaomeng Li, Travis Palladino, Nicholas Schafran, Ryan MacLeod, Chirag Bhatt, Amanda Gold and Martin Yim. Cover photo by Ari Moore. Cover design by Amy Parker. Interior design by Ahmad Dowla.

This report was made possible by generous support from New York Community Trust, Robert Sterling Clark Foundation, Laurie M. Tisch Illumination Fund, Rockefeller Brothers Fund and Edelman.

General operating support for Center for an Urban Fu­ture has been provided by the Bernard F. and Alva B. Gimbel Foundation, Fund for the City of New York, the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation and the M&T Charitable Foundation.

RELATED PRESS

To help artists, this non-profit thinks like a venture capitalist

Creative New York Report Sizes Up New York City’s Creative Class

Opinion: City Officials Must Do More To Boost New York’s Creative Sector

City & State, by Jonathan Bowles, June 28, 2015

Independent Sources - Diversity Disparity

CUNY Television, by Garry Pierre-Pierre, September 21, 2015

NYC’s creative class job sector tops L.A., as film and TV production jumps
Rents giving artsy tenants stage fright

Creative Job Stats Every Brooklynite Should Know

Study documents rapid growth of Brooklyn’s creative economy

New York’s Creative Class Leading City’s Economic Growth, But Struggling To Pay The Rent

The Virtuous Cycle of Keeping Your City Affordable for Artists

New York’s creative job sector is growing: study

Study: NYC creative sector is growing

Report Finds New York City’s Creative Sector Is Thriving, for Now

Creative Class Leading the City in Jobs

Opinion: Facing the music, Little Orchestra Society scales back

The Magic Shop — recording studio where David Bowie and Lou Reed made albums — being priced out of SoHo digs

Number of creative professionals in the city grows, but so do their expenses

The U.S. Cities Where Creative Jobs Are Thriving
New York’s creative sector boosts economy

CCTV, by Nick Harper, July 14, 2015

Study: NYC creative sector is growing

Miami Herald, June 24, 2015

Wanted: “Good American Jobs”

Next City, by Alexis Stephens, June 26, 2015

Despite the Rising Cost of Living, Brooklyn Is Still a Creative Haven

Brooklyn Magazine, by Sam Blum, August 13, 2015

Study: Staten Island lags in creative sector despite nonprofit growth

Staten Island Advance, by Lauren Steussy, June 24, 2015

Creative Sector Employs Nearly 300,000 in NYC, 7 Percent of All Jobs Citywide

Dexigner, June 28, 2015

The State of the Arts in NYC: Pushing Artists to the Brink of Crisis

WBAI, by Savona Bailey-McClain, September 16, 2015

A Beloved Recording Studio May Be Priced Out of SoHo

The New York Times, by Ben Sisario, October 09, 2015