Center for an Urban Future
Innovative Ideas. Independent Policy.

Data - April 2015

Library Funding is Behind the Times

Though visits, book circulation and program attendance are on the rise, New York City's public libraries are open fewer hours than the state's largest counties and trail behind cities throughout the nation.

In Branches of Opportunity (2013), the Center for an Urban Future documented how New York's seniors, immigrants, K-12 students and unemployed were using their public libraries, and how visits, book circulation and program attendance were skyrocketing in the age of the Internet. Every year, New York's 207 public libraries greet more visitors than all of the city's professional sports teams and Cultural Institutions Group members combined, but their increasing value to communities across the five boroughs has not been widely acknowledged by policymakers. Funding is still down considerably from just a few years ago, and library hours are still sharply curtailed, especially when compared to other libraries across the state and country.

An assessment of posted library hours that we conducted over the past few months reveals that New York City public libraries are open fewer hours per week than every large county in New York State except one (Erie County). New York City public libraries are open an average of just 45 hours per week, significantly less than the public libraries in Suffolk and Nassau Counties (which are open 64 hours per week), Rockland County (60 hours), Westchester County (54 hours), Onondaga County (53 hours), and Monroe County (50 hours). Erie County libraries were open 43 hours per week.

Moreover, just 3 percent of New York City libraries are open seven days a week, compared to 90 percent of Suffolk County libraries, 88 percent of Rockland County libraries, 75 percent of Nassau County libraries and 57 percent of Westchester County libraries.

Among New York City boroughs, Queens libraries are open the fewest hours on average (41 per week) and the Bronx the most (48 per week); Manhattan, Staten Island and Brooklyn are all open 46 hours per week on average. Whereas most libraries in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan and Staten Island are open at least 6 days a week, just 29 percent of Queens libraries open their doors that much.

Our analysis also compared New York City's public libraries with library systems in the nation's 10 largest cities. We find that New York's public libraries fall into the bottom half of large urban libraries nationally when it comes to service hours. Out of the country's ten largest cities, New York ranks 7th. Just San Jose and Houston offer fewer service hours than the five boroughs. Public libraries in San Antonio are open 57 hours per week (with 100 percent open seven days), while those in Los Angeles are open 53 hours, San Diego 51 hours and Chicago 49 hours.

Library service hours are an enormously important barometer of their effectiveness. When libraries have to close early in the evening and on the weekends, fewer working families are able to take advantage of their resources, including not just books but classes and workshops. As Mayor de Blasio and the City Council negotiate a new budget, bringing the city's library hours more in line with their peers across the state and country should be a high priority.

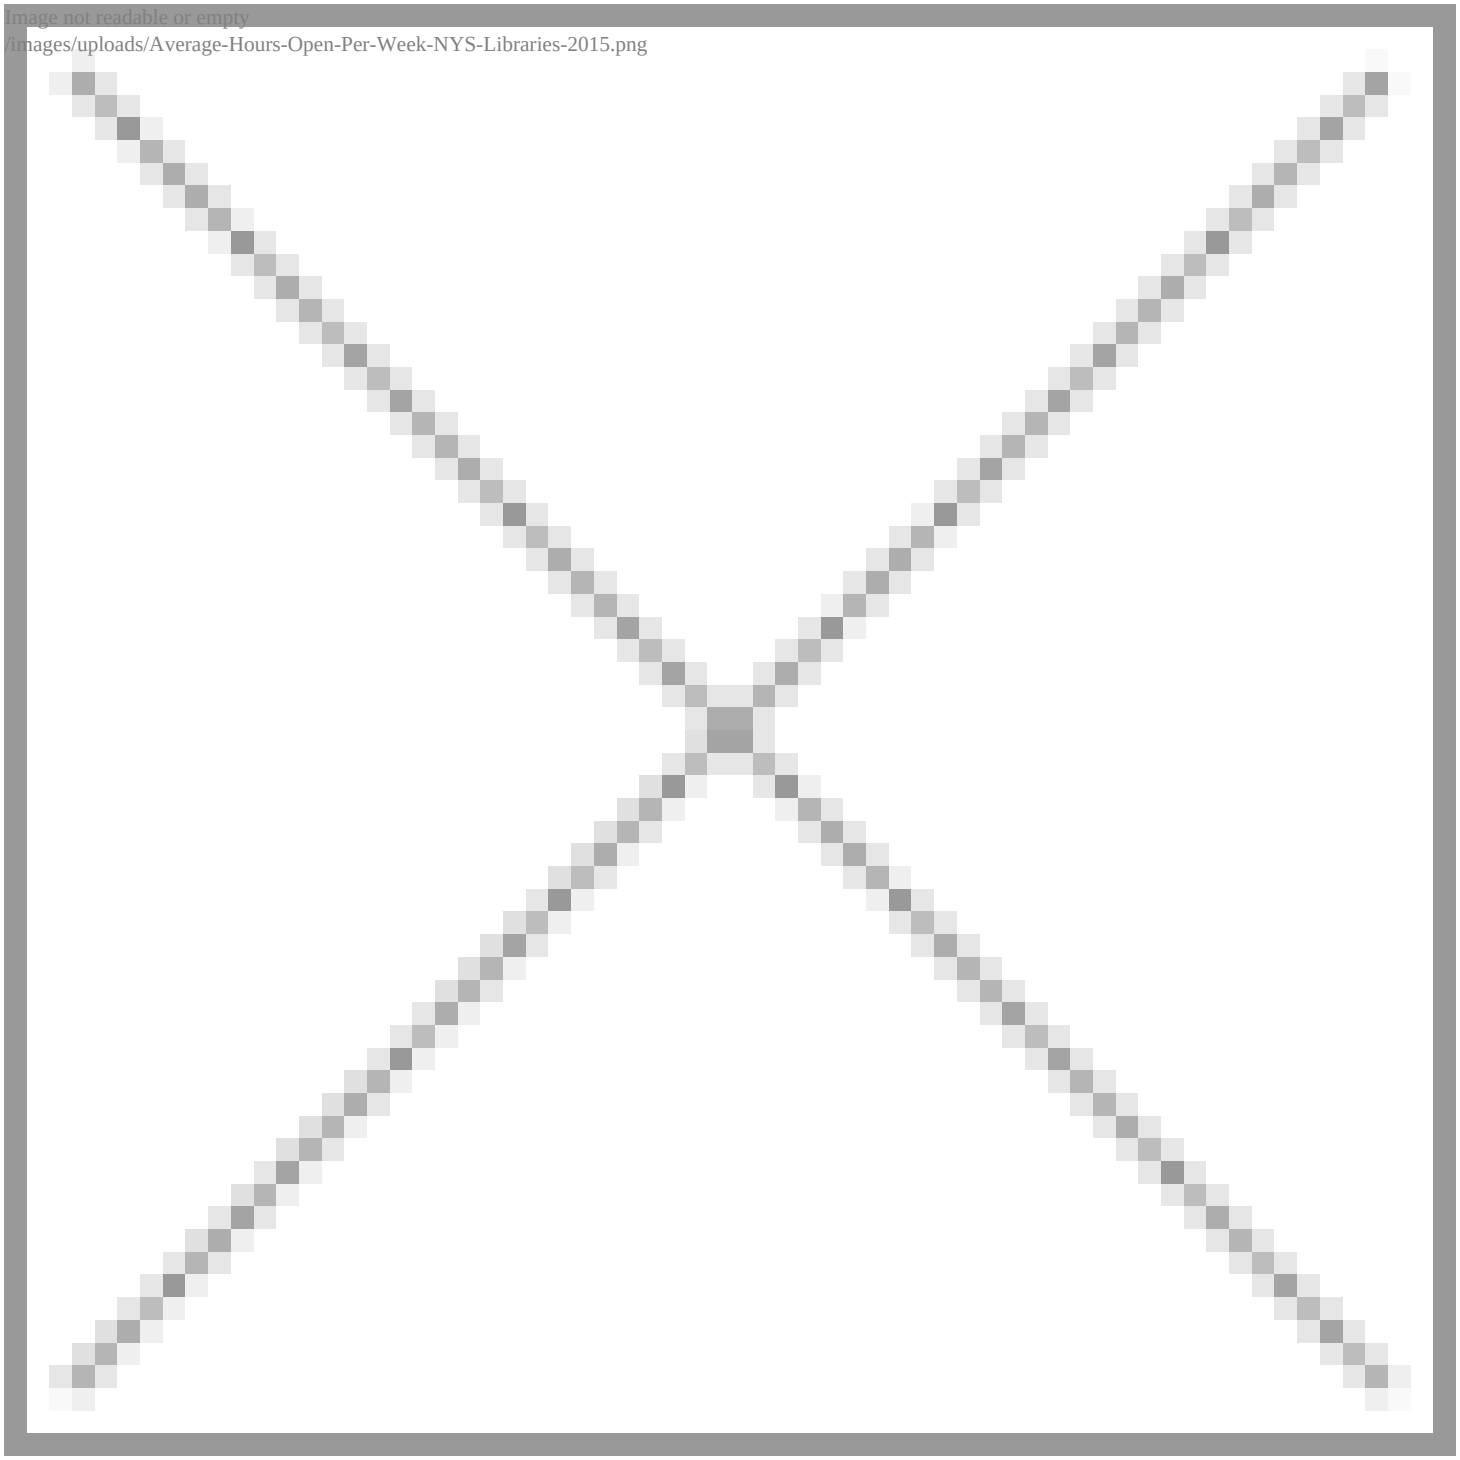

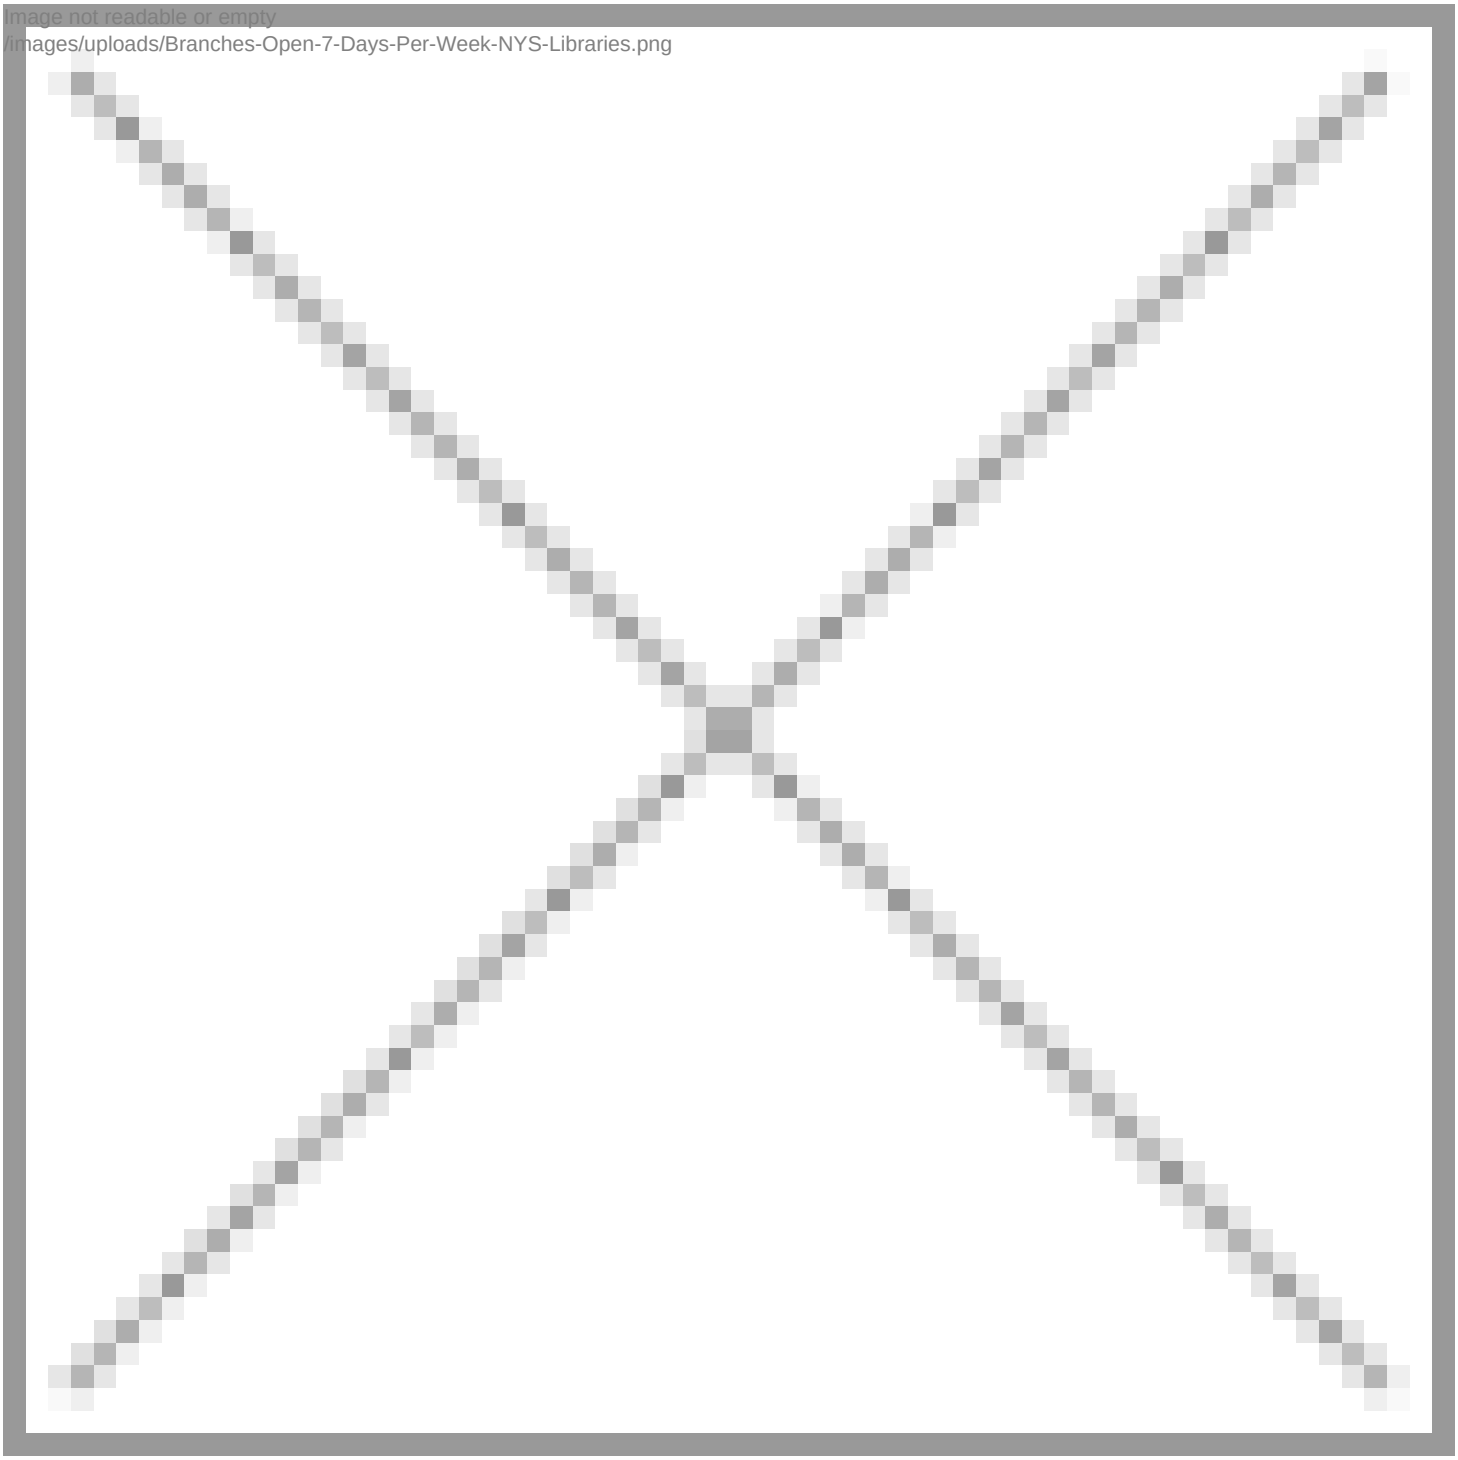

Image not readable or empty
/images/uploads/Average-Hours-Open-Per-Week-NYS-Libraries-2015.png

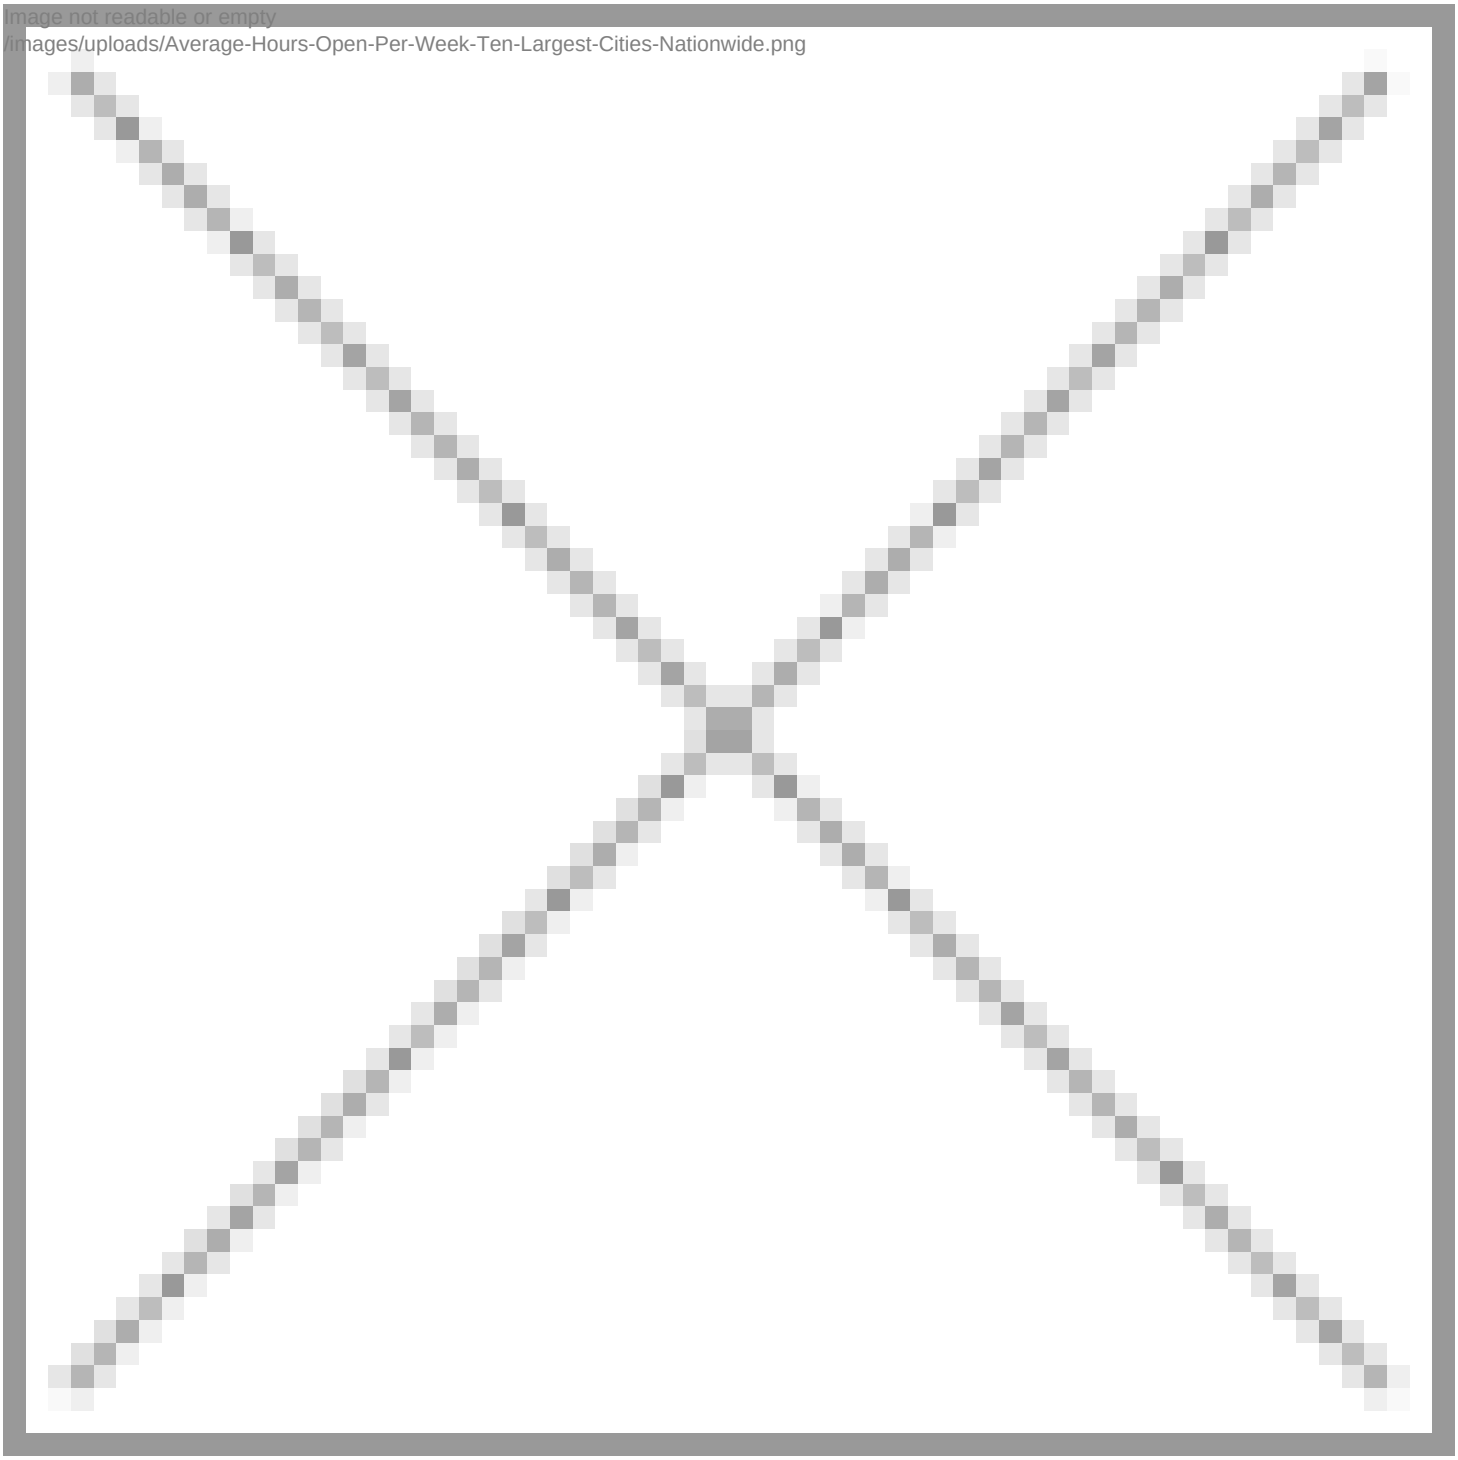

Image not readable or empty
/images/uploads/Branches-Open-7-Days-Per-Week-NYS-Libraries.png

Library Service Hours in New York State's Largest Counties
County	Avg Hours Open per Week	Branches open 7 days	Branches open at least 6 days
Nassau	64	75%	100%
Suffolk	63.6	90%	98%

Rockland	59.9	88%	100%
Westchester	54	57%	98%
Onondaga	52.7	38%	94%
Monroe	50.4	24%	97%
Albany	46.6	32%	89%
Broome	45.2	0%	78%
NYC (all)	44.7	3%	67%
Erie	43.1	22%	53%

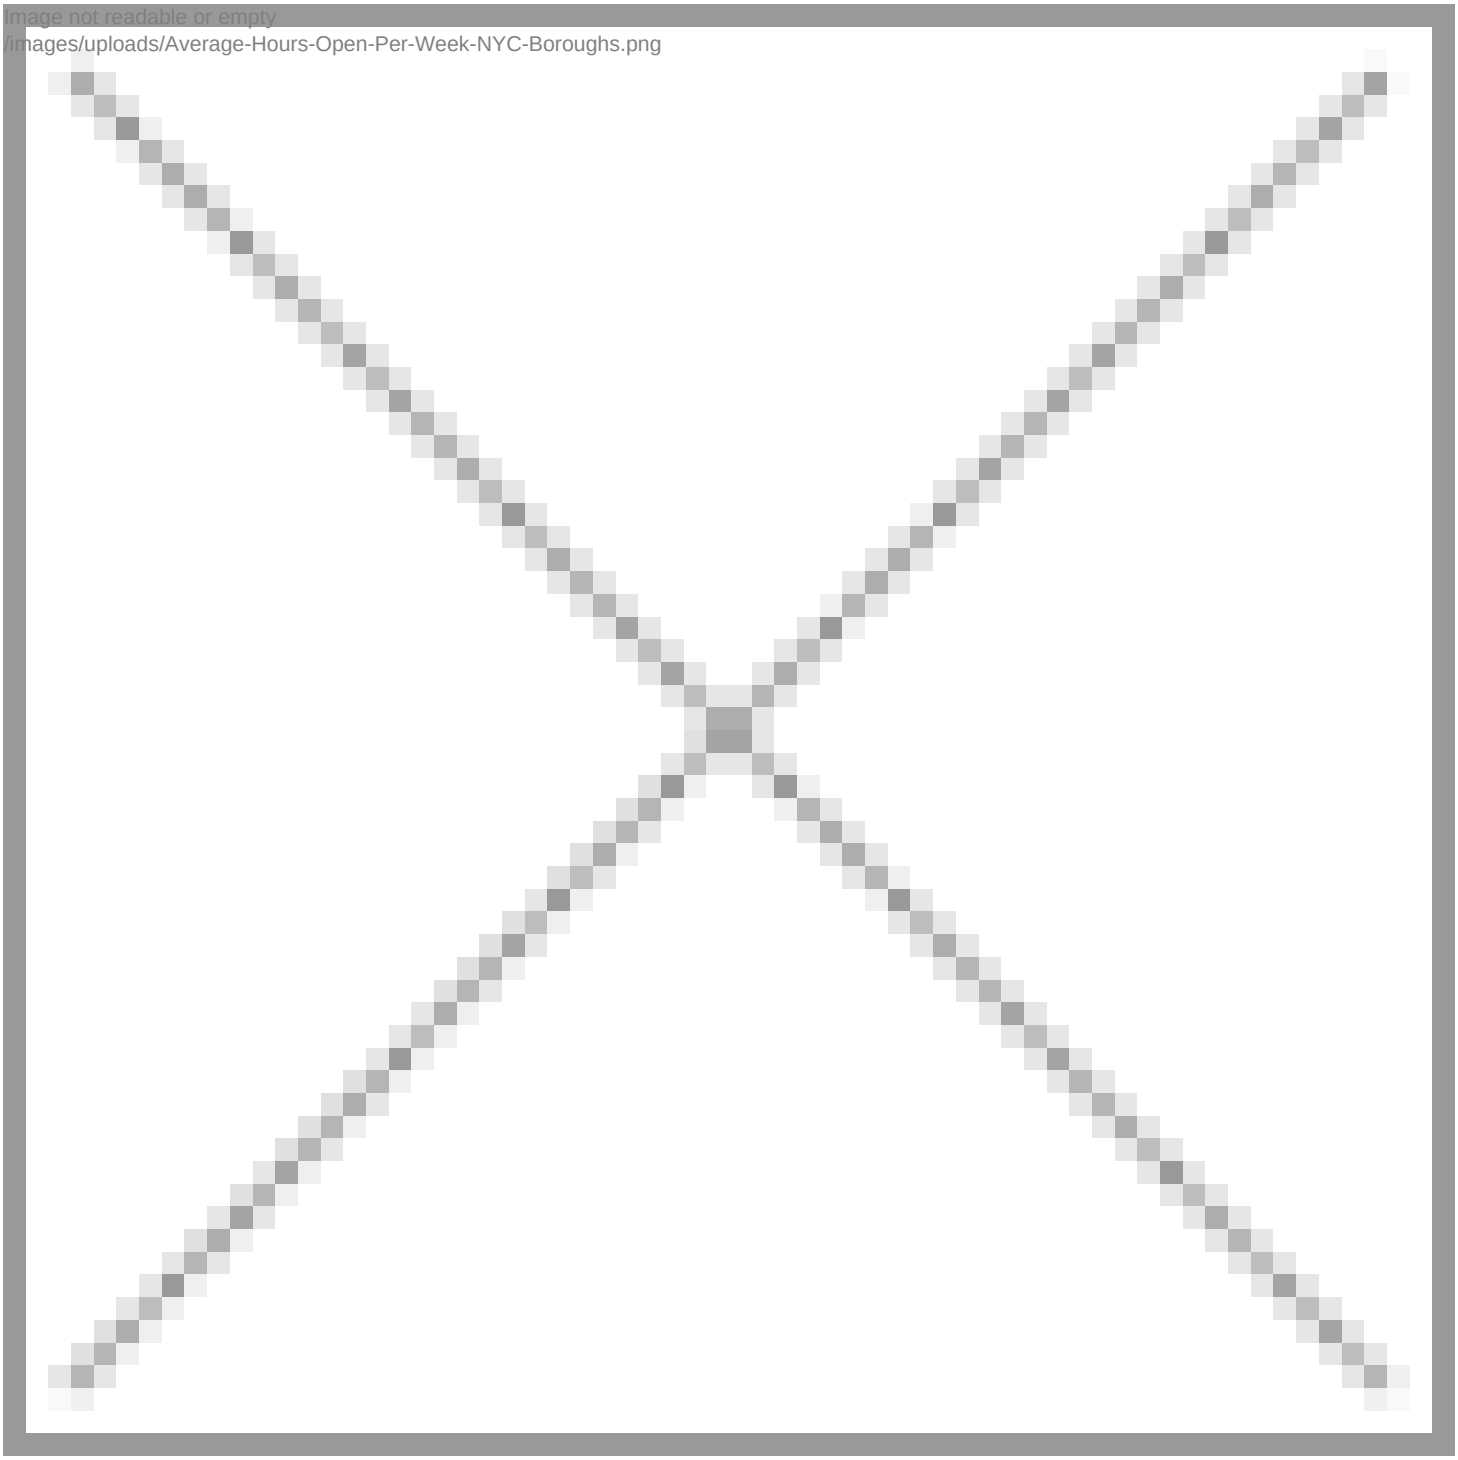

Image not readable or empty
/images/uploads/Average-Hours-Open-Per-Week-Ten-Largest-Cities-Nationwide.png

Library Service Hours in Ten Largest Cities Nationwide
City	Avg Hours Open per Wk	Branches open 7 days	Branches open at least 6 days
San Antonio	56.5	100%	100%
LA	52.8	11%	100%

San Diego	50.6	35%	100%
Chicago	48.8	5%	97%
Phoenix	48.4	53%	53%
Dallas	45.2	24%	31%
Philadelphia	44.9	6%	75%
NYC	44.7	3%	67%
Houston	39.0	2%	52%
San Jose	35.8	4%	4%

Image not readable or empty
/images/uploads/Average-Hours-Open-Per-Week-NYC-Boroughs.png

Library Service Hours by NYC Borough
County	Avg Hours Open per Week	Branches open 7 days	Branches open at least 6 days
Bronx	47.9	3%	97%
Manhattan	46.1	3%	97%

Staten Island	46	8%	92%
Brooklyn	45.6	3%	64%
Queens	40.9	3%	29%

Source: This data is from an assessment of posted library hours that we conducted in November 2014-March of 2015.

This data analysis was written by David Giles, researched by Jeanette Estima, Eva Bein and Melanie Breault and edited by Jonathan Bowles. Design by Amy Parker.

This data analysis is part of a series of research briefs on New York City public libraries that was generously funded by the Charles H. Revson Foundation.

General operating support for Center for an Urban Fu-ture has been provided by the Bernard F. and Alva B. Gimbel Foundation, Fund for the City of New York, the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation and the M&T Charitable Foundation.

RELATED PRESS

Read it & weep: New York City next to last in state library hours

New York Post, by Carl Campanile, April 10, 2015

Library Hours Ranked in 10 Biggest Cities

Next City, by Marielle Mondon, April 09, 2015

Report: NYC libraries open less than others in state

amNY, by Stephanie Grella, April 09, 2015

Ready for growth, if funding allows

Queens Chronicle, by Cristina Schreil, April 16, 2015

Report Says Libraries Should Be Open More; Libraries Agree

Wall Street Journal, by Sophia Hollander, April 09, 2015

NYC Public Libraries Get Largest Funding Increase Ever

Hyperallergic, by Jillian Steinhauer, June 24, 2015

New York City libraries open fewer hours than anywhere else in state: report

New York Daily News, by Erin Durkin, April 09, 2015

Report: NYC libraries operating hours not long enough

San Francisco Chronicle, April 10, 2015

Denying New York Libraries the Fuel They Need

New York Times, by Jim Dwyer, April 24, 2015

Overdue repairs: Brooklyn Public Library struggling to meet $247 million funding shortfall

Brooklyn Paper, by Kevin Duggan, October 25, 2019

Center for an Urban Future Examines Libraries' Place in Tech Skills-Building

Library Journal, by Lisa Peet , March 18, 2019

CENTER FOR AN URBAN FUTURE
120 Wall Street, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10005

cuf@nycfuture.org © All Rights Reserved.