Center for an Urban Future

Innovative Ideas. Independent Policy.

Report - June 2009

Manhattan's Declining Share of New York City Jobs

This edition of New York by the Numbers shows that over the last 50 years, Manhattan has been gradually loosening its grip on the private sector jobs in New York City. In 1958, the borough accounted for 67.6 percent of all non-government jobs in the city. But by 2008 its share had fallen six percentage points to 61.6 percent. The other four boroughs, meanwhile, have experienced a slow but steady increase in their share of jobs.

by Center for an Urban Future

Click here to read the full report (PDF).

RELATED PRESS

Real Estate, Take Notice! Manhattan's Share of Private-Sector Jobs Declines, Brooklyn's Increases

The New York Observer, by Molly Fischer, June 17, 2009

Brooklyn Gains Private-Sector Jobs; Manhattan Shows Decline

The Brooklyn Eagle, June 17, 2009

Brooklyn Registers Modest Private-Sector Job Recovery

The Brooklyn Eagle, July 01, 2009

Study shows Bronx not getting its share of city's private sector jobs

New York Daily News, by Benjamin Peim, July 07, 2009

BK slice of job mkt. grows

Brooklyn Times Ledger, by Gary Buiso, July 09, 2009

Manhattan Job Market Loses Ground

New York Times City Room Blog, by A.G. Sulzberger, June 17, 2009

Manhattan's Share of NYC Jobs Falling

Bloomberg News, by Henry Goldman, June 17, 2009

CENTER FOR AN URBAN FUTURE
120 Wall Street, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10005

cuf@nycfuture.org © All Rights Reserved.